AN IDIOT
Objects To Plea
By Counsel

Poznan, Oct. 10.

Burly Janusz Kulas, described by a doctor as a paranoid schizophrenic, jumped up in a Poznan riot court today and shouted at the defence lawyers "stop trying to make me out an idiot."

Earlier the Judge had quoted a report by Dr. Jozef Zaroski in 1953 that Kulas, known as "Eddie Polo" and the "Italian Bandit", suffered from a serious form of "split mind", was incapable of normal thinking and was "a danger to the community."

Another doctor told defence lawyers from the witness box that Kulas was a psychopath whose understanding and actions would be influenced by the riots which flared up in Poznan on June 28.

Kulas, 19, six feet tall, fair-haired and broad-shouldered, scowled and said "there is no basis for all this talk."

Strange Child

"For example, I have my driving licence and have never had an accident. I am asking the defence to defend me in the Poznan events and not to try to make me out an idiot."

The prosecution alleged that he was prominent in armed raids by scores of youths on police stations during the riots, in which 53 died and 200 were wounded.

After Dr. Zaroski told the court in evidence that Kulas's parents said he was a "strange child" and "uncontrollable," the Judge read a letter Kulas was said to have written to his father and mother in 1953 when he was in trouble and ran away from home.

Asked by the Judge to say whether the letter was in his handwriting, Kulas replied, "I want to be judged on the Poznan incidents and leave this other business out."

Earlier the Court shook with laughter when Kulas rose to "correct" a statement by a witness who said he saw Kulas and another man fighting in a restaurant toilet.

Kulas said "the man was a friend of mine. When he heard I was training to be a boxer he said 'come on, let's go to the washroom and have a go.' When we left we were perfectly good friends and did not feel angry at all."

Tank On Fire

A Polish army tank officer told the Court trying Kulas and seven others aged between 18 and 25 that people set his tank on fire with petrol when it was sent to guard security police headquarters, and beat him up when he jumped out.

They hit him over the head, and dragged him into a doorway, tearing the stars off his epaulettes and shouting that he had murdered people.

Voices shouted "shoot him" and a man pointed a weapon at his head, he said.

The officer said his tank, which arrived on the scene at four p.m., had not fired as he and his crew had no orders to fire and no ammunition.

Tank Taken Over

One of the men in the dock, Roman Bulczynski, 19, said that between one and two p.m. he saw a tank firing with machine guns and people near him fell wounded.

One of the court's three prosecutors said, "this was the tank that was taken over by civilians."—Reuter.

Special Soviet Planes For Hatoyama

Moscow, Oct. 10.

The Russians have decided to send three special planes to Stockholm to bring Japanese Prime Minister Hatoyama and his party to Moscow, Japanese sources said today.

Instead of arriving during the evening on Friday at Vnukovo Airport outside Moscow, the Japanese Premier with 19 other delegates and 8 correspondents will fly in at the central airport within the city limits which is reserved for "VIPs."

The decision was announced to the Japanese official in charge of the advance party, Counsellor Kiyoko Nizaki, when he visited the Foreign Ministry this afternoon.

Mr. Nizaki was also told that Mr. Hatoyama would stay at the official Spidromovka guest house.

The last-minute change in plan appeared to indicate that Mr. Hatoyama would be met with a full ceremonial welcome accorded to foreign premiers, through it was thought improbable that he would be greeted by streets lined with cheering crowds which had been organized for other heads of Asian governments.

In view of his earlier arrival it was believed that the Japanese Premier might be able to complete courtesy visits on Marshal Bulganin and other Soviet leaders on Friday afternoon and begin formal discussions on Saturday.—Reuter.

Bundestag
Meets
In Berlin

Berlin, Oct. 10.

The West German Bundestag, Lower House of the Federal Parliament, today met in Berlin for the second time in its seven-year-old history and pledged itself to continue striving for the reunification of Germany.

The Bundestag, like the Federal Cabinet, from time to time is meeting in West Berlin to emphasize its belief in reunification and its belief that Berlin should once again become the capital of a united Germany.

Dr. Eugen Gerstenmaier, the Bundestag President (Speaker) said in an opening address that the temporary removal of the Bundestag to Berlin reflected the desire of all Germans for reunification.

"We have lost the war, and now peace must be won by all. But nobody will win if Germany remains divided," Dr. Gerstenmaier declared.—Reuter.

SECRET POLICE
MAN ARRESTED
IN HUNGARY

Vienna, Oct. 10.

Hungary has arrested the secret police son of an ousted Stalinist Defence Minister, the official Hungarian news agency announced today.

Iron Curtain experts identified one of four Hungarian security officers announced arrested as Vladimir Farkas, son of deposed Defence Minister Mihaly Farkas, a faithful Stalinist and close associate of purged Hungarian Premier Matyas Rakosi.

The Hungarian news agency announcement said only that the four had been arrested and charged with "violating the socialist laws." It did not say specifically what their crimes had been.

Security Officer

Refugee sources said the younger Farkas was a high security officer known for his cruelty in interrogation. They said he was reported to have arrested Hungarian Communist Party Central Committee member Janos Kadar, who was recently rehabilitated as "one of the comrades innocently persecuted by the Beria gang in Hungary."

Kadar, now a member of the Hungarian Politburo, is believed to be one of the up and coming party officials and has been pegged by some observers as a possible successor to party boss Enree Geroc.

Austrians who recently returned from Hungary said they were told that Vladimir Farkas had tortured Kadar by pulling out his fingernails when he interrogated him in the headquarters of the secret police in Budapest.

Observers here believe the arrest of Farkas and the other three officers will be followed by the detention of other "Stalinists."

Expelled

Antal Apró, a Deputy Premier, said last Saturday when speaking at the rebuttal of rehabilitated "Rightist" Laszlo Rajk that "all who took part in the persecution of our comrades will be made responsible for their crimes."

Vladimir Farkas is the son of former Defence Minister Farkas.

Automatic
Morse
Converter

Tokyo, Oct. 10.

A mechanic of Japan's International Communications Company, Kokusai Denhin Denwa, has built an automatic converter which changes ordinary morse signals into printed page reports.

The inventor Mr. Taisaku Wada said today his converter was cheaper and simpler to construct and maintain than the electronic devices now in use in Britain, and was the only converter known to be able to perform the entire process of receiving more signals, converting them to five unit code for teleprinter and of printing in page form in one operation.

OLYMPIC TESTS

An executive of the company said the new converter would be tested under practical working conditions during the forthcoming Olympic Games in Melbourne. He said the converter would receive morse broadcasts relayed from Singapore at the company's station 60 miles out of Tokyo and distribute the messages over teleprinter circuits in Japan.

The executive said the saving in time from the old manual methods of conversion would be about 50 per cent while the gains in both accuracy and economy would be considerable.—Reuter.

Poland Moving Towards

Titoism REINSTATEMENT OF FORMER PARTY SECRETARY

By K. C. THALER

London, Oct. 10.

Poland today was reported on the verge of a move towards a Tito-type regime.

A government reshuffle was held imminent which would herald the full reinstatement of Wladyslaw Gomulka, former party secretary who was ousted and imprisoned in a Stalinist purge after Tito's 1948 walkout.

Arrangements Suggested For Tangier

Tangier, Oct. 11. Moroccan Foreign Minister, Ahmed Balafout, today promised that Tangier would retain a "liberal economic and financial status" when the present international regime, governing the city, was wound up.

Balafout said the new arrangement must not harm Moroccan economy or currency, and that he would ask the help of foreign diplomats in reaching the appropriate decisions.

The Moroccan Foreign Minister was speaking after the preliminary session of the closed-door diplomatic conference to decide the future status of Tangier.

INVESTMENT

He said: "We met to discuss the liquidation of the special international regime in Tangier in which Morocco had no part, and I can assure you that we shall take into account the legitimate interests of officials of the old international administration."

Balafout said Morocco would encourage the investment of foreign capital in Tangier. He said: "There will be much greater facility for the inflow of capital in Tangier. Formerly, investors complained that the dual system of the protectorate was an obstacle. We hope now that they will be able to return to Tangier in all security."

The Foreign Minister, who said he was optimistic about the outcome of the conference, said that a later session today would study the working procedure and the setting up of various commissions. —France-Press.

The resignation yesterday of Hilary Minc, Poland's chief economic planner, appeared to have paved the way for the return to power of Gomulka. Minc had personally helped to oust Gomulka.

A special meeting of the Polish Communist Party's Central Committee called for next Monday was expected to bring important decisions.

Question Mark

Expert observers believed it would result in victory of advocates of "liberalisation" over the Stalinist diehards, reportedly led by Defence Minister Marshal Konstantin Rokossovski and Vice-Premier Zenon Novak, a member of the Politburo.

Premier Jozef Cyrankiewicz is understood to be siding with the "liberal" wing.

But the great question mark is: will Russia look on actively while Poland slides away from Kremlin tutelage?

Earlier this week it had been reported that Moscow had reinforced her armed forces in Poland by four divisions, seemingly in anticipation of trouble.

Poland is the key to Russia's hold over her East European empire. She not only shares a long frontier with Russia but is also one of the most important of the satellites.

Since the de-Stalinisation course in Russia gained momentum earlier this year, political and ideological ferment has gone further in Poland than in any of the Soviet satellites in Europe.

Into Open

There have been growing indications that powerful forces have since been operating within the country even among ruling Communists towards greater independence from Russia.

The June 28 Poznan riots brought into open the general discontent that had been smoldering under the surface.

The conduct of the current Poznan trials has been held as a strong indication that the regime preferred to "go easy" for fear of open revolt.

The envy of the Yugoslav system of national communism has been dormant in Poland since Gomulka was sent to prison. His influence apparently has continued to work inside the country in favour of a "socialism" more suited to Western standards than the Muscovite pattern.

As a result of the "thaw" Gomulka—who previously had been a Deputy Premier and the party's First Secretary—was readmitted to the party last August. But he was reported to have declined office until his opponents have been removed from power. Minc was one of them.

Lacking Faith

A member of the Politbureau, Minc was said to have been mainly responsible for Gomulka's expulsion in 1948. Minc branded Gomulka as a man "lacking faith in Stalin."

Gomulka's return has reportedly been demanded by several members of the Politbureau, including Premier Cyrankiewicz.

Expert observers believed that this would amount to a move of defiance against Russia and the beginning of a Tito-type of regime in Poland. A further purge was reported imminent both in the Government and the party.

Last Tuesday three vice-ministers in the machine industry were dismissed. This preceded the resignation yesterday of Minc, the virtual dictator of Poland's industry.

Opposed Moscow

Economic troubles have been largely blamed for the outbreak of the Poznan riots. Too speedy industrialisation, at the expense of consumer goods production, has also been a major factor in these developments.

Minc exerted influence as an accumulation of the opposition on the lines of Stalinist orthodox economy, though he was said at times to have opposed Moscow's economic demands. —United Press.

CHRISTIAN HISTORY STUDY

Cairo, Oct. 10.

An international nine-man committee of experts in the Coptic language and early Christian history has now begun examining the 13 volumes of 3rd Century Gnostic manuscripts discovered near Luxor ten years ago.

The discovery of these manuscripts, written on papyrus leaves bound in soft leather, has been described as one of the most sensational of this century.

The Gnostics were early Christian heretics who flourished between the first and sixth century of this era, and the major part of present day knowledge concerning them has been based on references rather than on direct manuscripts.

A first examination of the 13 volumes, nine at least of which are in perfect condition, reveals that they contain the complete text of the Gospel according to St. Thomas, believed to have been written before the four Gospels collected in the Bible.

TEN YEARS

Work on the manuscripts is expected to take at least ten years. The committee, which consists of four Egyptian experts and five European specialists, plans to publish the manuscripts and to bring in any specialists it needs to help. It plans to make about 100 photocopies of each page of the manuscripts. There are about 1,000 pages, 794 of which are in perfect condition.

Only one of these volumes was hitherto known to exist. It was found by an Egyptian peasant some years ago, sold on antiquary for a small sum and subsequently published.

The other 12 were found by an Egyptian peasant in 1946 at Nag Hammadi, about 10 miles north of Luxor, in a large earthenware jar buried near the spot where the first Christian monasteries were founded in the 4th century.—France-Press.

Giant Tankers For Britain

London, Oct. 10.

The British Petroleum Company, formerly the Anglo-Iranian, is to include several giant 60,000-ton deadweight tankers in its fleet, as a consequence of the Suez Canal dispute.

This was announced by the company's chairman, B. R. Jackson, at the launching at Clydebank today of the British industry, the company's largest tanker—32,000 tons.

The company now owns 114 vessels totalling 2,018,000 tons, one of the largest petroleum fleets in the world.

Forty-one other ships are under construction, seven of them of 41,000-ton deadweight tonnage. The 60,000-ton tankers are to be built at the John Brown and Company yards on the Clyde.—France-Press.

White Slavery Racket Disclosure

Rome, Oct. 10.

THE vice squad of the Rome police last night arrested a 37-year-old alcoholic dancer, Gianni Alceo, alleged to have supplied "raw material" to an international "white slavery" ring.

Alceo reportedly had approached young pretty girls in the Italian capital and had offered them contracts as "dancers" in Greece.

Britain's Earnings Beat Purchases In Six Months

London, Oct. 10.

Britain's earnings abroad in the first half of 1956 far outdistanced her purchases and left her with a current balance of payments surplus of £144 million, the Treasury announced today.

In 1955 there was only a small surplus in the first half year, and a deficit of £197 million in the second half.

It explained that the current trade with the rest of the sterling area (which includes the British colonies and Commonwealth—with the exception of Canada—Burma, Iceland, Iraq, Jordan, Libya and Elire) totalled £113 million, about the average for the preceding year.

But the surplus of £31 million including defence aid, with the non-sterling world, followed three periods of substantial deficits.

A Treasury spokesman said the surplus was regarded as "a swing in the right direction."

He said it was unlikely to suggest that the second half of 1956 would show a similar surplus, since the summer period was always difficult and the position had been affected by the Suez Canal crisis.

Later at a mayor's banquet he told the guests that throughout his recent travels in the United States, Russia and Europe, the greatest welcome he had received had been in Uzbekistan and China.

Unseasonal rain over the already partially flooded provinces of Hopei and Kiangsu grounded President Soekarno's aircraft and he travelled by train from Nanking where earlier today he inspected the staff college.

REVIEW

He reviewed a parade of army and navy students who ranked from major to major-general.

There are 2,600 students in the college which was formerly the Kuomintang National Defence Ministry. They do a six-month preparatory course followed by a year and a half to four year main course which includes political training.—Reuter.

Cairo, Oct. 10.

The Egyptian Foreign Ministry today received a note from the Pakistani Foreign Ministry, asking Egypt to agree to the nomination of Mohammed Ali Rashid as new Pakistani ambassador to Egypt.

Rashid, who is a former Pakistani information minister, is to replace Tuffazzal Ali at the Cairo Embassy.—France-Press.

After the contract was signed, the girls reportedly were "shipped" to Athens by plane, where they were sold to an undercurrent of the show in which they were to take part had been cancelled.

Enemies of the "white slavery" ring then contacted the stranded and now penniless girls. The girls then were reportedly "shipped" to an "activity" completely different from that which had been promised them.

A number of the luckless girls were said even to have been transferred to certain Middle Eastern and Far Eastern countries.

The Rome vice squad is still continuing its investigation of the case. Several young girls who had contacted Alceo have been interrogated by the police.—France-Press.

Portuguese Timor Hurts Indonesians

Djakarta, Oct. 10.

A group of Indonesian youths and students unanimously agreed last night to set up a movement called the anti-colonial movement which would strive towards the holding of a plebiscite in Portuguese occupied Timor, East Indonesia, and "pave the way for the right of self-determination of local inhabitants of the island in accordance to United Nations Charter."

Mr Indra Suyakawati, chairman of the movement said his movement was not especially directed against Portuguese colonialism in Timor but against "any form of colonialism which is still prevailing within or bordering Indonesian territory."

He said Portuguese Timor was "a reminiscence" of colonialism and "conspicuously more closely interrelated with other Indonesian islands in the archipelago, for instance West Java (West New Guinea)."

He said Portuguese Timor constituted "a greater danger to Indonesia than West Java because in the event of war it might be used as a war base by members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation of which Portugal is a member."

He reminded that Holland was also a member and the Dutch would be allowed to make use of such a base.

"Our task is to actively contribute towards the abolition of colonialism everywhere in the world and not the least these at our doorsteps," Mr Suyakawati said.

According to him the position of Portuguese Timor was "identical" to the Portuguese and French enclaves in India such as Goa, Daman, Davao and Pondicherry.

Asked whether his movement also applied to British Borneo, he said that though the situation was "rather different" his movement "will not rest until a free and democratic government is also established there."—Reuter.

He landed by plane in this town in the northern part of the territory after six years exile because of his marriage to a white woman.

He found more than 3,000 men, women and children at the airport to greet him.

The wild excitement of the crowd made him cancel his plan to speak to them. Police held them back, and at one stage the situation looked so serious that rifles were handed out to the police.

But the crowd broke up when Seretse Khama drove away from the airport with the Divisional Commissioner.

The 33-year-old British-educated Seretse returned as a private citizen. Renunciation of claims to the chieftainship by himself and his children was the condition imposed by the British Government for the ending of his exile in England.—Reuter.

Other nation," Strauss said, "On the contrary, we stand as the acknowledged world leader in every aspect of nuclear development, both for national and peaceful uses."

He said that 18 atomic plants to provide power for civilian homes and industries are planned. The first will be completed next year and six of the 18 are being built by industry "without depending on the Government for any direct financial subsidy."

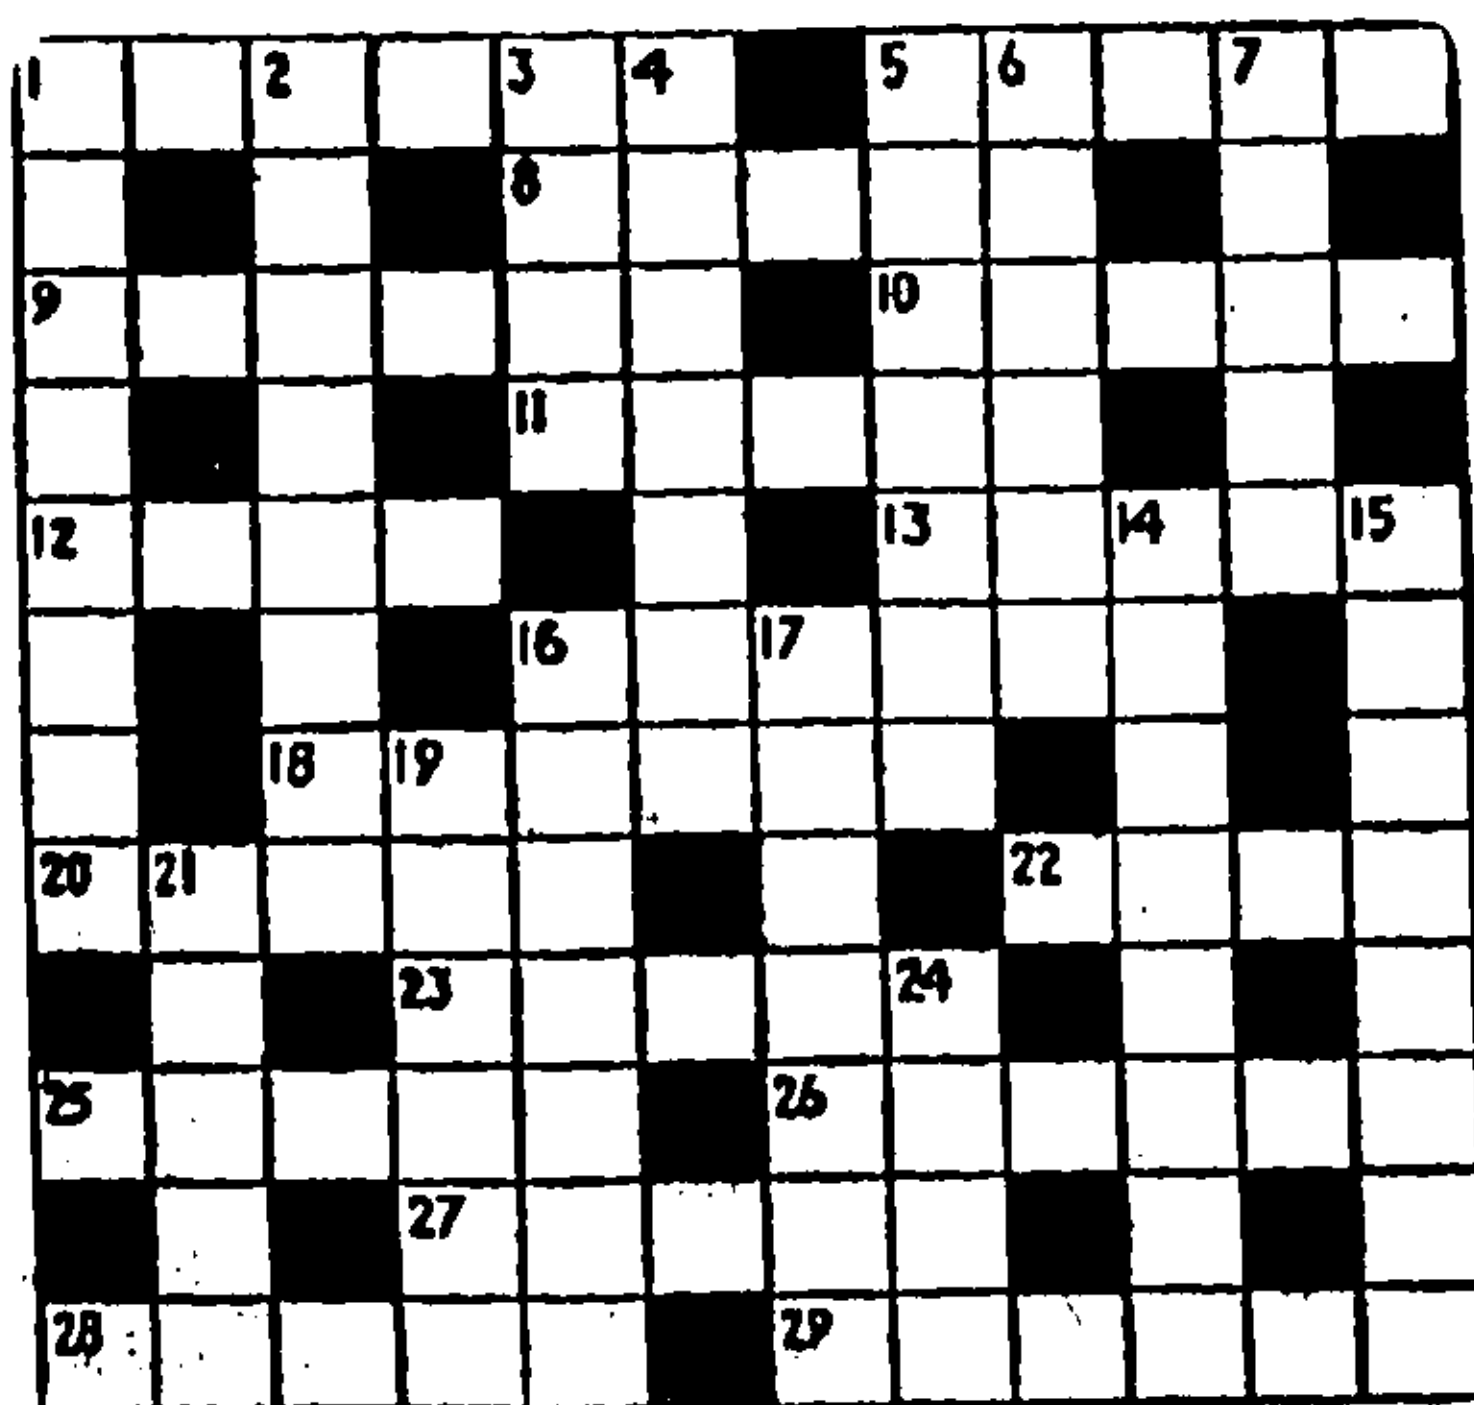

He said industry had such faith in the soundness of the Administration's atomic policy that it is prepared to invest upwards of $200 million in those six plants.

Encouragement Strauss also assailed charges that big business is the primary beneficiary of the atomic programme. He said firms employing fewer than 500 persons will do one-fourth of the work on the $40 million nuclear part of the shipping port, Pennsylvania, plant nearing completion.

Under the "encouragement and import" of the Administration, Strauss said, American firms "are already discussing contracts totalling more than $200 million for nuclear power plants abroad."—United Press.

The delegation, which arrived here last Saturday on a six-week visit, will inspect Japanese industries and study the productivity movement in Japan. Upon its return to India, the delegation will recommend the establishment of an Indian counterpart of the Japanese productivity centre and the European Productivity Council. Dr. Sarabhai said.—United Press.

WORLD SERIES

YANKEES CRUSH DODGERS 9-0 TO WIN THEIR 7TH WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP

By OSCAR FRALEY

Brooklyn, Oct. 10.

Squat Yogi Berra broke Dodgers hearts with a pair of $100,000 homers and young Johnny Kucka broke their backs with three-hit pitching today to crush Brooklyn, 9-0, and give the New York Yankees their seventh World Championship in ten years.

The Yankees, turning on all their long-famed power in this seventh and final game of the annual classic, made it a Mauling Mardigras before 33,782 Ebbets Field fans as Berra's two-run pair, one by Elston Howard and a grand-slammer by Burly Moose Skowron provided an all-time record of 12 homers for the Series.

Berra's blasts in the first and third innings gave him 10 runs batted in to break the immortal Lou Gehrig's 26-year-old record for the Series and set up his big Newcombe for another trip down heartbreak highway. Newcombe, four times previously a failure against the Yankees, was knocked again by Howard's blast leading off the fourth.

And the 23-year-old Kucka took it from there with the added comfort of Skowron's big double in the seventh.

Kucka, the "sinker-ball" baby of the Yankee pitching staff, induced it up with a fantastic, but as he handed the Dodgers the most humiliating seventh-game Series defeat since the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Detroit Tigers, 11-0, in the 1931 final.

He had only six base runners, each of him, this blue-skinned, curly-haired, and only three walks and one error, but he was the only pitcher to lead the Yankees in strikeouts in eight years.

GRIM DEFEAT

And once again it was grim defeat for Newcombe, beaten twice by the Yankees in 1949, once in 1955 and taken off the hook in the second game this time around by a magnificent rally after he had given up six hits and six runs in one and two-thirds innings.

Newcombe went slightly further this time in search of "the big one" but he didn't get off the hook as he yielded five hits, three of them homers, and five runs in 61 futile pitches.

The Yankees jumped on him right at the outset when Hank Bauer hit big Newk's fourth pitch into left for a single. Billy Martin came up then and on a hit and run, Bauer stole second base as the usually reliable Roy Campanella's throw bounced short of the bag and Pee Wee Reese had to leap high to spear it.

That could have been a big out for big Newk, because he struck out both Martin and the mauling Mickey Mantle.

Then it was Berra, who knocked Newcombe out of the box in the second game with a grand slam homer. And Yogi had the same script on hand. He lofted a homer high over the right field screen into busy Bedford Avenue for a two-run Yankee and Newcombe then struck out Skowron to retire the side—but already it was too late.

Brooklyn mounted its biggest threat in the bottom of the first when, with one away, itese walked and Duke Snider singled to left. But Robinson, the hero of the sixth game, dashed into a double play.

From there on the Yankees made it a field day. They can their lead to 4-0 in the third after Martin laced a single to center with one out. Newcombe whistled his last ball past Mantle for the second out—but then it was Yogi once more.

As in the first inning, Yogi got two strikes against him. Then he put two against Newcombe with a towering two-run shot high over the right field wall. That was the one which broke the Yankees' mark of nine runs batted in for one series, set in 1928.

Berra, whoops not only helped set a pair of series records, but they also virtually clinched for himself and his Yankee teammates the major portion of the $693,561.53 players pool.

VICTORY AND DEFEAT

With 60 percent divided among the winning players, there was a difference of approximately $150,000 between victory and defeat. And off-season endorsements and public appearances will undoubtedly raise that victorious net to more than $200,000. A full Yankee share should be worth about $9,500 when the series splits are announced and that Dodgers about $8,000.

Then, Howard, first man up in the Yankees fourth, put the third strike-and-out call against Newcombe when he batted a homer over the right field scoreboard to make it 5-0.

The boss of the crowd ringing in his ears, Newcombe trudged off with head down. Don Bessent, second of five Dodger pitchers, took over next and held the Yankees off for three innings before retiring in.

favour of an unproductive pinch-hitter.

So in the seventh, young Roger Craig was on the mound when, with the organ playing "I'm a Yankee Doodle Dandy," those Yankees proved it again. Martin led off by nipping a single to center and moved to second as Mantle walked on five pitches. Then Craig was looking down the alley at Berra, lightning-lashed his bat, and while it was a chilly day young Roger was sweating so much that his first pitch was with one which advanced both runners. That left first base open and Berra wasn't given a chance to go for Babe Ruth's record of three home runs in one series game. They gave him an intentional walk.

For the Moose stepped in at 4.1 point, with the bases loaded, belted the first pitch into the left field stands—only "the sixth grand-slammer in the annals of the classic and the first time that had been two in one series.

BRAND NEW RECORD

It also broke the brand new record to 12 homers by one club in a series, surpassing the mark of 10 wrapped up by the Yankees.

There still was none out and, when Howard doubled off the right field wall, Craig took the long walk to the showers. Ed Roebuck came in to get the next three men and there were some cheers for the battered pitcher as they finally came off the field.

But Kucka had more than enough of a lead by then. He got the Dodgers down by the seventh, a walk being erased by a double play; gave up one of his three hits to Carl Furillo with one out in the eighth, and was touched by Snider for a single in the ninth with two away.

Then Johnny Ruff first strike past Robinson and it was all over but the dressing room shouting.

Korea Beats Vietnam 3-0 In Friendly Soccer

Paris, Oct. 10. The series of friendly football matches between Communist China, Korea and Vietnam concluded in Peking this afternoon when the Korean team beat its Vietnamese rival by three goals to nil, the New China news agency reported.

In the three friendly matches, the Korean team beat both its Chinese and Vietnamese rivals. The Vietnamese lost to both the Korean and Chinese sides; while the Chinese won and lost one game each. No score was made by either side during the first half. When play was resumed the Koreans launched an all out attack and scored three goals within 20 minutes. —France Press.

AFTER THE GAME

Dodgers Admit They've Been Clubbed Silly By A Group Of Yankees

"They beat the hell out of us." Manager Walt Alton of the Dodgers was the first to say it, but the phrase soon echoed through the gloom of defeat in the Brooklyn clubhouse as Dodger after Dodger conceded they'd been clubbed silly by an aroused group of Yankees in the seventh game of the World Series.

"Don Newcombe had great stuff," said Alton, "but it was either a knockout or over the fence for a bunch of runs. Don couldn't do anything else in between."

The heartbroken loser, Newcombe, departed swiftly—he was dressed and gone within minutes of the time Alton pulled him in the fourth.

"He was fast," said Roy Campanella. "Yogi Berra hit a bad pitch for a two-run homer in the second inning. It ain't the first time Yogi hit one off his ear and it won't be the last. But he hit another good homer off a good pitch in the third and then Elston Howard homered off a change-up. That was the ball game."

A GAME TRY

Governor Averell Harriman was among the first to visit Brooklyn's clubhouse and Campanella told him, "How do you like that? We win one for the President but can't win for the Governor."

"I was with you all the way, though," said the Governor. "It was a game try."

Alton said the turning point in the series, in his opinion, was Don Newcombe's perfect game giving the Yankees "that all-important third victory in the series."

"If we could have won that, it might have been different," said Walt. "That game was the big one. I guess we all knew it."

Jockie Robinson, whose tenth inning single kept the Brooks alive yesterday, had another turning point to recall.

"We just dropped dead at bat," he said. "I never saw a club quit hitting the way we did all of a sudden. It wasn't the old Yankee Stadium jinx at all."

"We didn't get any hits here at home the second time, did we?"

"We have no excuses," said the veteran Pee Wee Reese, who had faced the Yankees seven times in World Series play and now was denouncing his sixth defeat. "All I can say is they beat the hell out of us." —United Press.

Something Must Be Done To Stop These Boxing Fiascos

Says DENNIS HART

We've had the big fight—at least the Dick Richardson-Ezzard Charles meeting was billed as a big fight. We've had the inquiry. Now we want action.

We not only want action, we must have it, in the interests of everybody—customers, fighters, promoters, referees and the Board of Control itself.

For if something is not done the customers who, at Harringay, showed their disapproval vocally will do it in a more passive but far more telling manner—they will cease to be customers.

Lower customers means fewer fighters, fewer promoters. There would be less work for referees and finally very little left for the Board of Control to control.

And action means more than the imposing of a £200 fine and a lot of mud-slinging.

Something must be done to make sure that we don't have any more of these fiascos in the future.

How? First let's see how this one came about.

From all corners fate seemed against the fight. We had an ageing ex-champion—Ezzard Charles, a brawling young hopeful—Dick Richardson, and a referee who was determined to be the boss—Frank Wilson.

Charles, his reflexes decidedly slower than when he ruled the world's heavyweights, plainly did not relish the all-action, sometimes rough-house tactics of Richardson. He sought refuge in clinches and holds. Referee Wilson clamped down from the start.

TOO MANY BRAWLS

It has been said that by acting so hastily Wilson did not consider the customer. That is exactly whom he did consider. We have seen too many brawls. Wilson determined to make a fight of it.

Yet I think he could have given Charles one more round. Had all the fault been on the American's side then one could only fully endorse the referee's action. But Richardson, through inexperience, perhaps, did contribute to this mauling.

Wilson was just a little too anxious to keep the party clean. A referee of thirty years' experience, this was his first big fight. And although the same laws must apply to the novice as to the champion it is perhaps not advisable to lecture a champion like a naughty schoolboy—at least in the first round.

A GAME TRY

Governor Averell Harriman was among the first to visit Brooklyn's clubhouse and Campanella told him, "How do you like that? We win one for the President but can't win for the Governor."

"I was with you all the way, though," said the Governor. "It was a game try."

HOME RUGGER RESULTS

Results of today's Rugby games were:—

Rugby Union County Championship: Hampshire 6 Eastern C. 12 Middlesex 6 Surrey 3 N. Midlands 3 E. Midlands 14 Rugby Union Club Match Cardiff 24 Swansea 6 Rugby League Australian Tour Liverpool C. 12 Australians 40

—Reuter.

These points, however, are raised for the good of boxing, not in defence of Charles. Just as a referee might be more tactful with a former world champion. It is the champion who should not need to be lectured on how to box.

IDEAL SOLUTION

But what is to be done for the future? The ideal solution would be for England and America to work out a common procedure for fighting and conducting boxing matches. Although it is difficult to imagine that even in America Charles would, as he claimed, have been allowed to proceed unchecked.

Such a merger, however, must remain a pipe-dream. The Yanks can't even settle on one method between themselves.

What can be done is for these matters to be fully explained at the very outset. When fight contracts are signed between boxers from different countries the visiting fighter must have these differences clearly pointed out.

Then the promoter can put the light on with easy confidence, the fans can turn up confident of a good night's sport and so on the referee.

Gul Mohammad Only Newcomer In Pakistan's Team To Meet Australia

Karachi, Oct. 10. Gul Mohammad, holder with V. Hazare of the world's highest batting partnership (577), is the only newcomer to Pakistan's cricket team which meets Australia starting tomorrow.

Australia, also played for India before starting his captaincy of Pakistan five years ago.

Pakistan appear to have packed off their team with batsmen, probably because of the plumb easy batting wicket.

Only four of the nominated men are established bowlers—men are established bowlers.—Reuter.

CESAREWITCH STAKES

Only 27 of the original 111 entries for the Cesarewitch Stakes, to be run at Newmarket next Wednesday, October 17, remained at today's final acceptance stage.

This year's prize for the two and a quarter mile race totals £2,810 of which the winning owner receives £2,200.

The 1955 winner, French Design, Silvery Boundary, Rally and Affiliation Order are among non-acceptors who have been quoted at official callowers. The acceptors, with weights are: True Cavalier 9-stone; one pound. Gads Hill 8-stone. Demon 8-stone 13 pounds. Saphos eight ten, Papilio eight nine, Curry eight eight, Rago eight seven, Alibi II eight six, Praetorian eight two, Cassis eight-stone, Cambray and Trovato seven-stone 13 pounds.

Flame Royal seven-stone ten, Meritorious seven seven, Walldor seven seven six, Diving Sult, Knight of Killarney and Tuscany all seven five, Lovely Vale seven four, Devonport and Kribbi seven three, Valio seven one, Frolone seven-stone, Iorlan six-stone 12 pounds, Crack of the Whip six eleven, Pe Shaling and Devon Brew six ten.

CHAMPION STAKES

Twenty final acceptors, with weights, for the Champion Stakes, to be run over one and a quarter miles at Newmarket on Thursday, October 18, are: Kufun, Eric, By Thunder, My Smoky, Tudor Jinks, Hugh Lupus, Tribord, Bead Prince and Norremour all nine-stone, High Veldt, Adaro, Pirate King, Bulson Ardant, Chief III, No Comment, Astrologer, Petras and Verrieres all 8-stone seven pounds, Victoria, Cote and Giverny both eight-four.—China Mail Special.

Even though he does not take part in either trial, that will not of itself exclude him from the Games.

The selectors have ruled that any Australian athlete who has a legitimate reason for missing the trials can be chosen for the Games on past performances if he passes a fitness test.

The World Mile record holder said he intended to rest from training in the next fortnight.

"I realize that rest in the only hope for me. My legs have become too sore in the last couple of days to run on."

"This week I have been able to do only light jogging in sandshoes. Unless there is some dramatic improvement I will probably have to miss out on the 1,500 Metres." —Reuter.

LANDY ON THE 'DOUBTFUL' LIST FOR OLYMPICS

Melbourne, Oct. 10. It was a sorrowful John Landy who today said he would not be competing in the 5,000 Metres Olympic trial on Saturday. He was doubtful whether he would be fit for the 1,500 Metres trial on the following Saturday and even had doubts whether he would be able to compete in the Games themselves.

"Unless my strained ankle responds within a month I will be unlikely to compete at the Olympics," he said.

Even though he does not take part in either trial, that will not of itself exclude him from the Games.

HE'S IN THE ARMY NOW

Loaded with all his newly issued kit, British and Empire Flyweight Boxing Champion Dai Dower can really feel that he is in the Army. As 23843412 Private Dower, he had just joined the Welsh Regiment at Malindi Barracks, Cardiff, to start his two years' National Service.

He has been working as a minor near his home at Abercromby, Glamorgan, and is in training for a return fight with Young Martin, of Spain, who took the European flyweight title from him.

Dower hopes to be allowed to continue his training and to meet Young Martin again before Christmas. —Reuterphoto.

Rocky Accuses 'I Was Blinded'

Rocky Marciano, former World Heavyweight Champion, shook America a few days ago with the accusation that someone attempted to blind him temporarily during his fight with Jersey Joe Walcott at Philadelphia in September 1952.

Here are three sides to the story, as told by Rocky Marciano himself in the Saturday Evening Post, Nat Fleischer, America's top boxing critic, and Felix Bocchicchio, who was manager to Jersey Joe.

I PRAYED...PLEASE CLEAR MY EYES

My story... by ROCKY MARCIANO

"Please, God, let me get my eyes clear. This is important to me. Please do that for me, and I can handle the rest."

The supplicant was Rocky Marciano. The occasion was his fight against the then World Heavyweight Champion, Jersey Joe Walcott, at Philadelphia in September 1952.

Marciano swapped the title and instead of getting better by knocking Walcott out with a right to the jaw in the 13th round.

The reason for the prayer was a dimmed attempt to blind him temporarily, according to Marciano's own story, through someone putting capsaicin ointment on Walcott's gloves.

"I'm sure Jersey Joe himself had nothing to do with this," Marciano says. "He was a helluva fighter that night, even without any extra help."

"Every time Walcott jabbed me and his glove came in contact with my eyes, or every time I clinched with him and got my face against his body, my eyes would smart."

"ON HIS GLOVES" Afterward, a policeman told me about the stuff that got into your eyes. It can be powdered, mixed in oil or used as a jelly. It was rubbed on Walcott's gloves.

"The whole thing was clear. It fitted in with what happened that night and with my having to go to a doctor to get my eyes treated for eight weeks."

"In the sixth, we had bumped heads and blood started streaming down my forehead and into my eyes. They started to burn. It was the seventh round."

I Chose City Just To Be Different

By KEITH BAILEY

(In an interview with Eric Nicholls)

Stowed away in the bottom of my wardrobe at home is a rattle. It is painted red and white on one side for United, blue on the other for City. I may be only 10, but at least I'm old enough to know that Manchester is the finest footballing city in the world.

Say what you like about Manchester. Crack your jokes about those ruined-off Test matches. You can't beat their footballers. After all, City won the Cup, United the League Championship. And City were fourth in the League.

What more do you want? When you live in Manchester you have a choice. City are home on one Saturday. United the next. Although my Dad is a United fan, I chose City. Why? Just to be different, I suppose. It had nothing to do with Dad, either.

It was like this. My best pal came to school one Monday morning wearing a big red and white rattle. He had been to see his first football match, on the Saturday. It was at Old Trafford, and he couldn't stop talking about how great United were. I remember saying: "Oh, I can't City." It was just to be different.

I was only 14 when City played Newcastle in the Cup Final. That's when the rattle got its second coat of paint, by the way. A neighbour managed to get a ticket for the Final. So I let him borrow the family rattle.

UNITED'S COLOURS It only had United's colours on one side, so our neighbour painted City's light blue on the other side.

I couldn't eat my dinner quick enough that day. I wasn't interested in food. All I wanted was to switch on the television and see City walk out on to the Wembley pitch and win the Cup.

We looked like doing it, too. Then our right-back, Jimmy Meadows slipped when he tried to tackle Mitchell, and was carried off. We were all proud of those ten men. And we all knew that a full City team would have won. Still there was always next year.

Our dreams came true. City were there again. This time they would win. They had to. We did a victory dance around the front room when the final whistle blew. The Cup was ours. And Manchester had done the double.

We all went down to the City Hall to cheer them home. It was a great sight, the torch with its roof open, and Roy Paul holding the Cup for ever and ever to see.

That's when the player who did more than anyone to bring the Cup back to Manchester, everyone's favourite, I like the Revie plan, too. For it's a team plan. All eleven have to do their share to make it work.

I remember when Revie was having trouble with the club for taking his family to Blackpool.

he refused to train with the team. Instead he did his running and bull work in the local park. We were on holiday at the time. I've never seen so many boys kicking a ball around the park as suddenly becoming interested in football. We all watched Revie, secretly hoping he would join in one of our scratch kickabouts, disappointed that he didn't. Still, I suppose he had too much on his mind.

BEST INDIVIDUAL I think Bobby Johnson is the best individual at Maine Road. As a field player that is. We all know that Bert Trautmann is the world's best goalkeeper. He would play for England if he changed his nationality. I hope it won't be long before he is fit enough to play again.

This reason will be a strange one for me. Working in London, away from City, I cut the days to their visits to London this season.

And of course they will be at Wembley in May!

ENGLAND BOSS TOLD US A SECRET AND WE WON!

By BILLY WRIGHT

(Captain of England and Wales)

Don't go abroad Mr Winterbottom, you are wasting your time! That's what Soccer's sneerers say when they read that England's manager—and the England team come to that—is travelling to "spy" on the sides we are to oppose.

But that's because they do not know their Soccer tactics. For instance, they do not know how Walter Winterbottom hit on the secret which enabled England to humble Brazil 4-2 at Wembley last May.

Mr Winterbottom hopped over to see the match between Austria and Brazil, in Vienna, to gain a few tips for the Wembley game.

He noticed that the Brazilian full-backs invariably took the throw-ins, feeding the half-backs "spare." This meant that the wing halves were outstanding in the South American triumph.

But not at Wembley. Mr Winterbottom had warned us of this move, and we were able to counter it and win.

INVALUABLE When I first went abroad with the England team we didn't make the careful preparations accepted as commonplace today because so many of us were in the Services.

practice we've had at Lillshall these past few days, plus the visit to Dublin to watch the Eire-Denmark match, will prove invaluable to us all in the games ahead.

You can always learn something about watching any match. As Denmark shortly meet us in a World Cup game at Wembley we naturally picked up plenty of valuable information.

SO FUNNY I see the "knockers" have again been at it. In the case of some folk All Soccer players—not just professionals—are looked upon without much favour.

At the slightest possible opportunity we are accused of being either bad sportsmen or dirty players.

This annoys me, for considering how every player must get worked up in the course of 90 exciting minutes, the sportsmanship that prevails should be a talking point instead of a few incidents exaggerated out of all proportion.

Now Ken the Golfer, who has also stressed the value of hard practice at golf, has won the professional footballers' golf championship.

This is probably the last time Ken will take part in this championship. He has received an offer to settle in New Zealand as a Soccer coach, plus a £20 a week job as a salesman, and a car.

"It's a wonderful offer which I must seriously consider," says Ken.

NIGERIAN RAILWAYS ARE SPREADING RAPIDLY

But Desert Camel Caravans Still Come To Kano

Lagos, Nigeria, Oct. 10.

Although desert camel caravans still link up with the railway at Kano, in the heart of Northern Nigeria, the railway itself is today an efficient and growing system, with modern diesel locomotives and up-to-date rolling stock.

It is, in fact, one of the bright spots in Nigeria's expanding economy.

No longer seen are the huge pyramids of stacked groundnuts which used to be such a feature of the Northern landscape before the railway was able to cope with moving the huge crop to the sea. Last year, was an all-time record harvest of 480,000 tons, all of which had been cleared in good time for the approaching new season in spite of the long haul of 700 miles or more to the southern ports for shipment overseas.

The present railway system runs from Lagos on the coast, to Kano, over 700 miles to the north, through the Western and Northern Regional capitals of Ibadan and Kaduna, and then loops southeast through Jos, the central tin mining area, and Bauchi, the Eastern Regional capital, to the sea again at Port Harcourt. There are branch lines at various points.

HUMID FORESTS

From Lagos and the humid coastal forests of the south, one travels through the savannah and desert of the Northern Region, to the rolling Jos plateau, across the mighty Niger and Benue and many smaller rivers down to the hills. En route, where Nigeria's coal mines, now producing nearly a million tons a year, bite deep into the hillsides and thence back to the coastal forest area.

Plans are now going ahead to extend the railway for about 400 miles, from a point near Jos on the central plateau to Maiduguri, in the northeast corner of the country near Lake Chad. The new branch line, which will cost £20,000,000 and take some years to complete, will greatly assist agricultural development in the fertile provinces of Bauchi and Borno, where the soil is ideal for the cultivation of foodstuffs, groundnuts and cotton.

Effective means of transport is especially important to such a rapidly growing country as Nigeria, where efforts are continually being made to improve and strengthen the over-all economy by raising the general standard of living and welfare of the community. It is hoped that by this extension of the railway into the undeveloped areas of north-eastern Nigeria, the peoples of Bauchi and Borno will in time enjoy a new prosperity and a greatly improved standard of living.

CONSIDERABLE VOLUME

Having regard to the nearness of the Maiduguri railway to the Chad Valley, in French Equatorial Africa, a considerable volume of traffic is expected over the new line.

The extension will also greatly facilitate the movement of livestock, eliminating the long and wasteful journeys now undertaken along the ancient cattle trails to the coast, which run through the tsetse belt.

The great increase in primary production in Nigeria in the last five years has resulted in a correspondingly greater demand for rail transport.

In addition to groundnuts, which represent one-third of the railway's total revenue from freight, crops include cotton, palm oil, and kernels, hides and skins.

Less than 15 per cent of railway earnings comes from passenger traffic. Typical of the progress which has been made was the completion last year of the special nine-mile long branch line costing £160,000, to the new cement works at Nkalagu in the Eastern Region. This track reached the cement works boundary in September 1955, and building materials for the cement factory began to be delivered from that time.

HEAVIEST LOADS

The heaviest loads ever carried by rail in Nigeria, comprising large pieces of machinery for the cement works, were transported from Port Harcourt in May this year along this new line to Nkalagu. To do it, it was necessary to lower the track under the sack-conveyor at Port Harcourt, raise the main Port Harcourt-Abe road overbridge and adjust the steel-work in the Iro River Bridge.

Recently, a 100-ton consignment of heavy caterpillar tractors and cranes from Britain and the United States was delivered at Kailua, 800 miles from Lagos. The tractors cost £140,000 and are for use in road development schemes.

Machinery weighing some 10,000 tons is being hauled for the new textile factory now nearing completion. The first consignment has been delivered, and others are due to arrive at regular intervals in the near future.

CORPORATION

The railway, previously a government department, became a statutory corporation in October 1955. For the year ended March 31, 1956, it had an operating surplus of £2,712,000 following receipt of £13,368,000.

Conditions of service and scales of pay are now being reviewed.

An extensive programme of staff training has been drawn up and there are over 500 mechanical and other apprentices in training, and 500 other grades receiving regular instruction.

Employment of Nigerians is being pushed ahead rapidly, but this policy can only be successful if the training given has been thoroughly absorbed and reinforced by a sufficient period of on-the-job experience.

The Corporation claims that in railway working there is no substitute for this practical experience.

BEGAN IN 1898

Construction of the railway began in 1898, a line between Lagos and Ibadan, a distance of 120 miles, being opened in 1901. Queen Elizabeth II travelled on this original section during her last year (1955).

In 1955, ten diesel locomotives were put into service, and more will be used as existing stock wears out.

Apart from being more economical to run, diesel locomotives have an added advantage in a country where, as in the north, there are severe water shortages in the dry seasons.

A 5-year-plan costing £16,000,000 for development works, including relaying certain sections with heavier track, remodelling of stations, double wire signalling and control systems, new running sheds, staff quarters and the replacement of rolling stock, has been prepared.

ROLLING STOCK

The latest type of first class rolling stock provides sleeping compartments, each fitted with toilet, shower, hand-washing facilities and accommodation for two to four persons.—China Mail Special.

Archbishop Exiled In Bohemia

Prague, Oct. 10.

Monsignor Josef Beran, Archbishop of Prague, who has been exiled from his diocese by government order, is now living in Bohemia, a high official of the Czech office of cults disclosed today to an AFP correspondent.

The official said that Archbishop Beran was living in a villa placed at his disposal by the Czech Catholic organisation, "Charita."

YUGOSLAV NOMINATED FOR ASIA

Belgrade, Oct. 10.

Mr. Vladimir Bakuric, President of Croatia and a member of the Communist Party Politburo, will represent Yugoslavia at next month's Asian Socialist conference in India, it was announced here today.

Mr. Bakuric, who is also a member of the Government's mass political organisation, the Socialist Alliance, will leave here at the end of the week for Bombay. The 10-day conference opens on November 1.

Foreign observers here regarded the announcement as being of more than routine interest—because of President Tito's week-long secret talks with Soviet leaders in the Crimea last week.

One point of dispute between the Yugoslav and Soviet parties is thought to be their different views on the role of Socialist parties in the world today. The Yugoslavs said the Socialist parties were advancing towards socialism, the Soviets said they were not.—Reuter.

Yugoslav Army Contacts

Belgrade, Oct. 10.

A Yugoslav army delegation led by Colonel-General Pavle Jaksic left here today for what the official Yugoslav news agency Tanjug described as a "friendly visit" to the Soviet Union.

A usually well-informed source said today the Yugoslav army also sent a delegation of seven officers under Lieutenant-General V. Kovacevic, to visit the United States forces in West Germany.

No details of the visit to the Soviet Union were given by Tanjug, but the source thought it likely that both missions concerned military aid for the Yugoslav forces.

TITO TALKS

The same source said that Mr. James Riddleberger, the United States Ambassador, visited Mr. Srdjan Prica, the acting Foreign Secretary today to discuss President Tito's talks in the Crimea last week with Mr. Nikita Khrushchev, Soviet Communist Party chief.

The source said that the American Government is anxious to know where Yugoslavia stands, as President Eisenhower had to decide by Thursday whether to continue economic aid to Yugoslavia.—Reuter.

JOHN CLARKES CASEBOOK

Bed And Breakfast

THE impression seems to be growing, among people of all kinds, that the main function of police stations is to provide hotel accommodation for those who, through some oversight, omit to make other arrangements. So far, to the best of my knowledge, no honeymoon couples have applied to the long-suffering station sergeant.

But most other categories of transients have from young men about town to the port have got it, to a lady whose feet are going into trouble.

Walter came on twice to take a bath. He had a home in London, was married, aged 51, with a 15-year-old son and a red-headed girl.

THREE-STAR

A quarter past 11, Walter came in. He was a bit of a mess, but he was a bit of a mess.

He stepped into the police station, which, among London police stations, cannot rate a more than a three-star one. It has no lift, no television, no cello, and none of the modern amenities.

Walter reached the counter and rang the bell. The sergeant receptionist, a woman, said, "I want a bed, sir." "Sorry," the sergeant said, "we've no bed for you. Now there's three places, you could go to." He named the first two.

SYMPTOMS

"BUT look here," Walter interrupted. "If I smash a window you'll have to give me a bed, won't you?" "I'm afraid we can't help," the sergeant said.

"I'll leave all right," said Walter. "I'll leave, just you watch me." The sergeant did. He saw Walter march to the street door and begin to beat up his glass panes. The sergeant swooped from his counter. "Now then," he began. At that point he began to notice things about Walter that he had not noticed before. Walter's breath smelt of drink. His eyes were white with the courts all glazed.

NOT GUILTY

"I'm arresting you," he said, "for being drunk." At the time, Walter may have been grateful for his bail for the night, but he was not. By the morning his gratitude had evaporated. At the court next door, when he was charged with being drunk, he pleaded not guilty, with some indignation.

A policeman told the story of the night before to the magistrate. "When he was charged," he reported, "this man said, 'Oh, go away.'"

"Rubbish," Walter challenged. "The only thing I said was, 'I'm drunk and you're a kind of a doctor to prove it.' I told them I'd been to three places for a bed and they'd all been full."

VALUE FOR MONEY

"WHAT are you?" the magistrate asked. "I'm a general labourer," Walter replied. "Why had you nowhere to sleep?" "I'd just left a living-in job," Walter said.

"Well, you behaved very stupidly," said the magistrate. "Please don't make an ass of yourself again. You must pay 10s."

"Certainly, sir," said Walter, without sounding too dismayed, and he marched away to pay. There are not so many places in London where bed and breakfast costs so little as he was being asked to pay.

Hungarians Arrested

Paris, Oct. 10. Vladimir Farkas and three other former high ranking Hungarian political police officials were arrested today for "serious violations of Socialist legality," Radio Budapest announced.

The four officials were recently fired from their jobs. The arrest order was issued by the Hungarian public prosecutor, the radio said.—France Press.

KOWLOON RIOTS CONTINUE

them back at the crowd, then got out of the vehicle. At this point, a man dressed in white top clothes and dark trousers, who appeared to be the leader of the mob, put up his hands and attempted to quieten the yelling crowd.

Mr. Wallace walked away, followed by the mob and its leader.

Near the P. Hing Theatre, Mr. Wallace paused for a while and waited for the mob, while the man muttered.

Then he returned to his work and at the junction of Jordan Road and the junction of Jordan Road and the junction of Jordan Road.

Running to them, he exclaimed, "What has happened here? They took him to 33 General Hospital."

There he was, tied for three hours, which required much time.

The taxi driver, who has been a taxi driver for many years, later returned to the scene and recovered his vehicle.

Store Attacked

The mob continued to move forward along Nathan Road and at about 3 a.m., they noticed the Yick Lung Co., who had been selling Chinese native food products from the Kowloon.

With a few wooden planks, they smashed at the front gate of the store and burst into the shop. The front part of the store was completely smashed.

A little later, Police squads appeared, and the mob was dispersed. The mob then retreated further, and began to disperse into the side street.

AGATHA CHRISTIE PLAY

If you feel inclined to commit a murder and you'd sooner do it by proxy, I recommend a trip to see the Garrison Players. As a matter of fact, it is not a murder you see, but murders, and they almost all take place on a set which the programme designates most inappropriately, "living room."

You need have come across Agatha Christie's novel, "Ten Little Niggers," or have seen a stage or screen version of this popular plot, but in case you have not done so, I'll say no more about it except to say it contains the largest red herring of all mystery plays.

We saw a rejuvenated company packed upon the stage, but I admit they have made a wonderful job of the set and the lighting, but if I were choosing the play for this theatre, I should select one where no more than four people are on the stage at any one time. This present production is a bit of a pity.

The play is a bit of a pity, but the players were falling over one another.

NURSERY RHYME FORMULA

Did I enjoy the play? Only up to a point, or rather, in parts. The first touch of drama is when the assembled ten hear a mysterious voice charging them with their various crimes. The film can do this well with a camera tracking from face to face and we follow the various reactions according to different personalities. Surely not all the ten would behave as one man, but that is what happened last night. It was most unconvincing. I got the impression that the radio announcer was reading the football results.

After this introduction the murders commenced according to the nursery rhyme formula. The first one chosen to death over a large whisky and potato-cygnets, number two according to the jungle crier, in this case helped by a little drug. So we went through the whole bag of tricks watching them knocked off one at a time by a murderer with a nicely developed sense of humour; you cannot deny feeling that there are worse things in the world than murder especially if it is performed in such an amusing and clever fashion.

There are eleven in the cast, as I have said, too many for such a small stage. The cleverly in Ian Mackintosh as the bon man who takes the victims to Nigger Island. However, the murderer soon goes down to business and thins out the company a bit.

Colin Caccillium Stewart produced this bright little play. —John Latt.

At about 4.30 a.m., there were no large gatherings in Nathan Road and Police squads patrolled the whole road. They also arrested a few people in the road.

At about 5 a.m., squads of policemen patrolled the whole Kowloon area and everything seemed to be quiet.

However, half an hour later, a group of about 100 people marched down Shanghai Street from Boundary Street. Leading the "parade" were several bicycles and immediately following these cyclists were two men with two large Nationalist flags.

As they "paraded" southwards they knocked at the closed shops and demanded that these shops hold the Nationalist flag. They also tried to smash the gates open with bamboo poles but were not successful.

Had No Flag

In Shanghai Street they found a tea-house open for early morning business. There were about 10 customers in the shop. Nothing the shop had no Nationalist flag flying. They demanded the flag should be put up. When a taxi replied they possessed no flag, the mob shouted "smash the shop."

Stones, bricks, bamboo poles and other missiles picked up from the street were thrown at the shop. The cyclist, at a number of table glasses were smashed.

Some of the customers were also hit.

The mob continued southwards, two men leading the group, waving flags. They found another tea-house without any flags displayed and within a few seconds had smashed up the shop.

A third shop further down the street, put up a flag just as the mob marched up. The place was left alone.

At this point two police vans appeared and the crowd dispersed into side streets. But they reformed again in Portland Street, where they were again dispersed by anti-riot squads with tear gas.

Burned Down

Two wooden structures, a school in Kowloon Tsai were attacked by mob shortly after midnight, last night. They were the Tai Wah College and the Pui Wah College. Both buildings were razed by fire.

The rioters then headed for the branch school of the Huen T. Middle School.

Using 20 cans of kerosene, the rioters started a fire outside the school buildings, and a little later stormed the main gate.

Two members of the school staff escaped and reported the serious situation to the Mong Kok police station. Fire engines and a force of police were despatched, but when the fire engines arrived on the scene they were surrounded and attacked by the rioters.

Meanwhile, others of the mob had succeeded in reaching the first floor of the school and were threatening the inmates on the second floor.

At this tense moment a strong contingent of police arrived and the mob rapidly scattered.

The rioters then turned their attention to the main Huen T. Middle School in Playing Field Road. They attacked the building with bottles and bricks and managed to set fire to some of the wooden windows. The school and were dispersed by anti-riot squads.

Man On Murder Charge

Closing addresses by Counsel were delivered to the Judge and Jury at the Criminal Sessions this morning at the trial of a labourer, Tang Choi, 38, charged with the murder of his wife.

Tang is accused of stabbing his wife, Chan Wong, with a knife 12 inches on the chest, abdomen and back, at 240 Chaiwan Road, second floor, on June 30.

In his evidence he claimed to have done "what I now regret" in a quarrel with his wife.

After the closing speeches, Mr. Justice J. R. Gregg began his summing up and the trial is still proceeding.

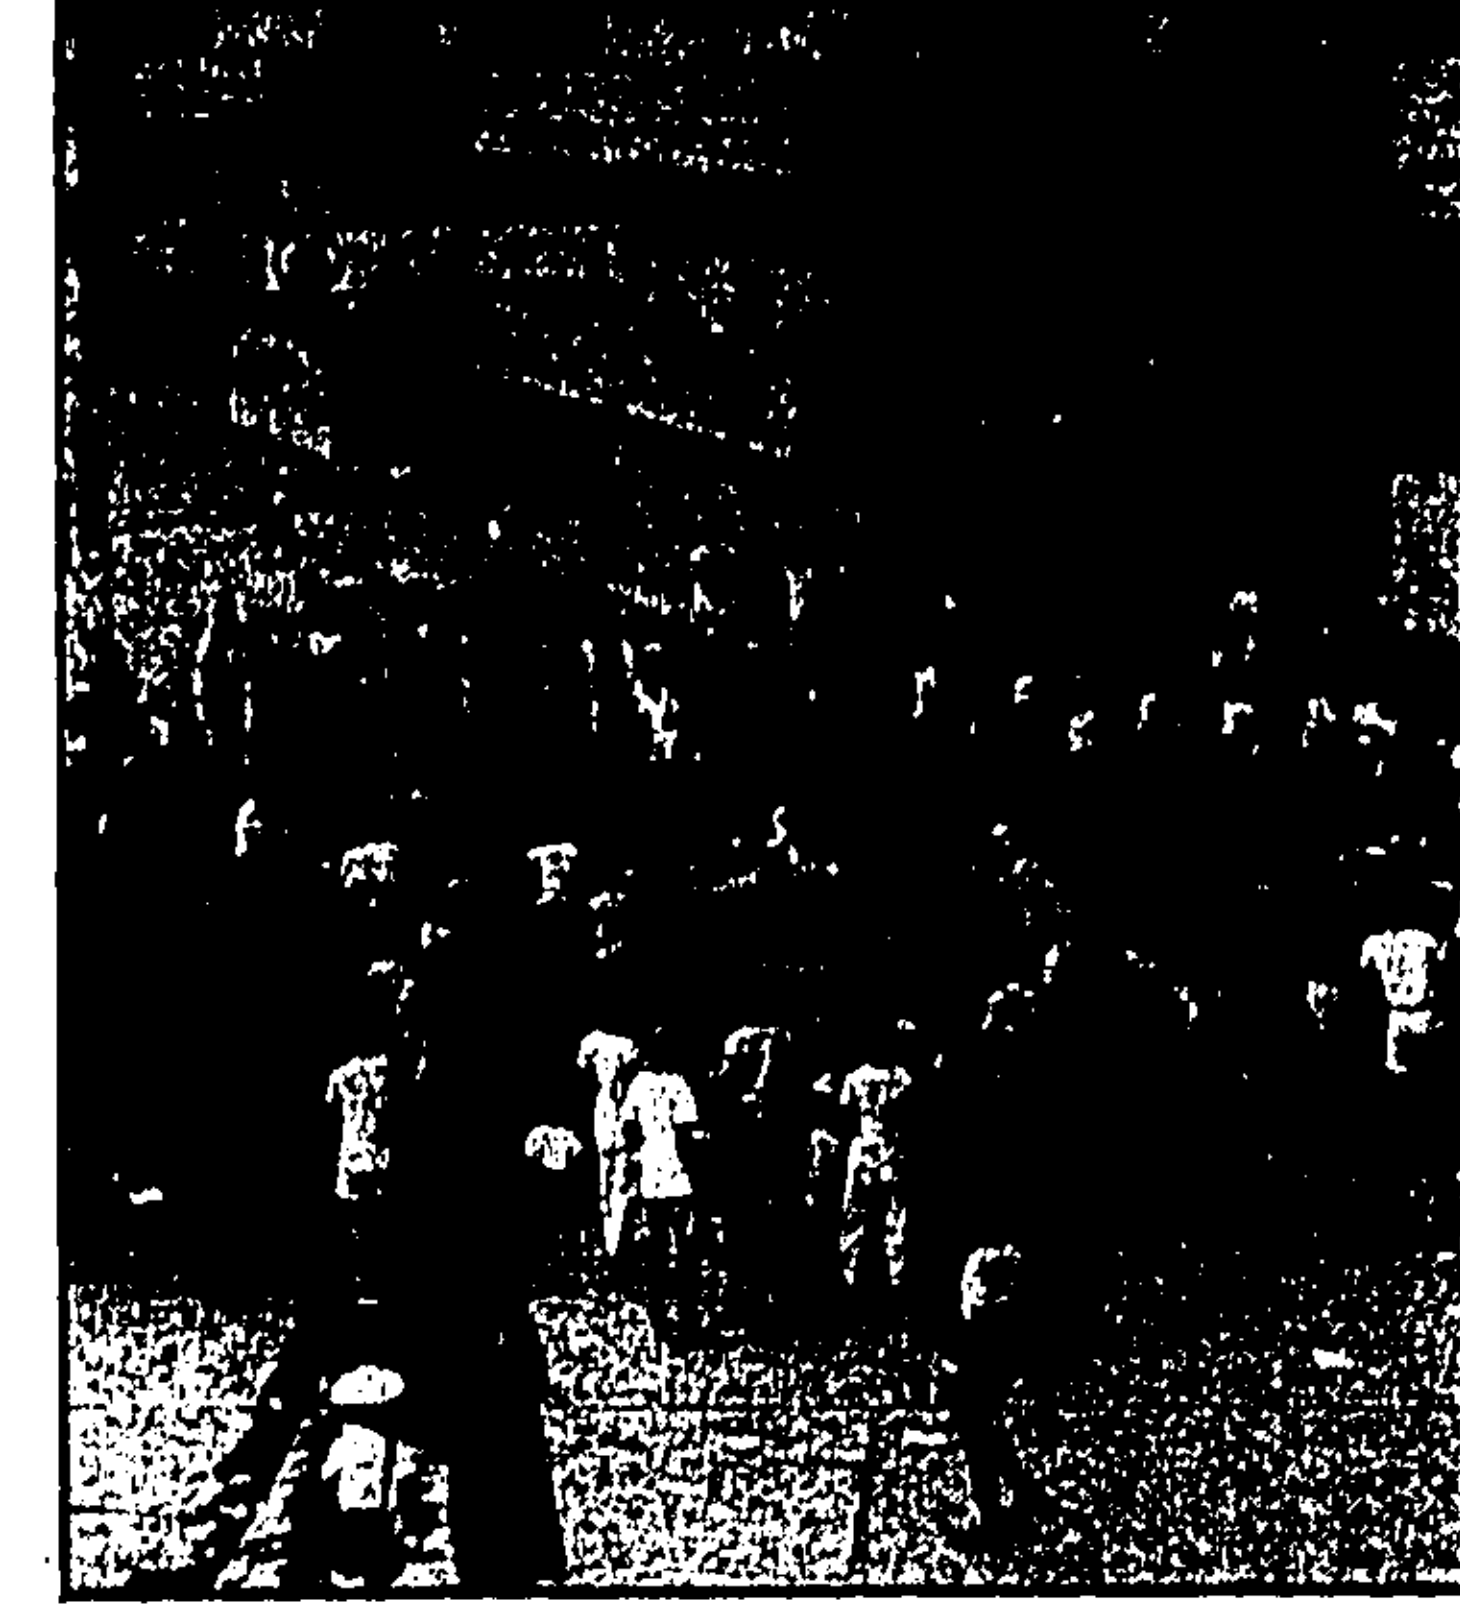

Mr. W. A. Blair-Kerr, Senior Crown Counsel, is prosecuting, assisted by Div. Det. Insp. F. Indge-Buchingham.

Mr. K. S. Gill, instructed by Mr. F. H. B. Wong, is defending the accused.

ACTION SETTLED: TERMS OF SETTLEMENT

An action for breach of contract of employment brought by A. H. Rose, employed as Assistant Editor of the South China Morning Post Ltd., against that firm, together with all disputes between the parties, was settled on terms before Mr. Justice C. W. Reece in the Supreme Court this morning.

Handing up these terms to the Court, Mr. Brook Bernacchi (instructed by Mr. H. Calne), Counsel for the plaintiff, Rose, said he was happy to tell the Court that the action had been settled.

Mr. John McNeill, QC, who with Mr. D. A. L. Wright (instructed by Mr. H. J. Armstrong), appeared for the defendants, South China Morning Post Ltd., said that this settlement comprised not only the claims in the action, but also all potential claims under a four-year contract of which there were two years to run. He also said that the four-year contract was terminated immediately. For that reason it was important that the terms of settlement should be made an Order of the Court.

Mr. Bernacchi confirmed that on payment of the amounts specified and compliance with the other terms, this settlement covered all disputes between the parties.

The terms were: 1. The defendants to pay the plaintiff $70,000 forthwith made up as follows: the sum of $30,000 representing two years' salary, a further payment of $7,000 and a sum of $33,000 and the plaintiff thereupon waives all claims against the defendants whatsoever arising out of this action and out of his contract of employment for four years, which said contract is hereby mutually terminated forthwith.

2. The defendants will pay for two first-class passages as far as the U.K. not exceeding P & O standard first-class rates the Colony on or before December 31, 1956.

3. The plaintiff further undertakes to leave the offices of the defendants forthwith.

4. The plaintiff to be permitted by the defendants to continue to occupy his present flat at the same rent and on the same terms and conditions until he leaves the Colony, but no later than December 31, 1956.

5. The defendants to pay forthwith to the plaintiff the amount calculated up to and including September 30, 1956, standing to his credit in the defendants' Provident Fund, including plaintiff's and defendants' contributions.

6. The terms of this compromise shall be, and be enforceable as, an Order of the Court.

Mr. Justice Reece directed that these terms be incorporated in an Order to be drawn up.

JUDGE'S QUESTIONS ON TYPEWRITTEN DOCUMENT

Queries on the way he made out a typewritten document were put by Judge James Wicks at the Victoria District Court this morning to a witness in the trial of a solicitor's clerk charged with uttering forged documents.

The witness was Li Yuen-lui, a partner of the Cheung Yuen firm, whose three-day cross-examination by the Hon. Leo d'Almada, QC, ended this morning.

Accused is alleged to have uttered a cheque for $10,370.23 drawn by Mr. A. el Arculli on the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank, purporting to be endorsed by the chop of the Cheung Yuen firm and the signature of Wong Kwai, and to have uttered a receipt to Mr. Arculli for this amount, purporting to have been chopped with the chop of the same firm and to have been signed by Wong Kwai.

A third charge alleged that Li obtained three valuable securities, cheques drawn on the National City Bank of New York to the value of $10,370.23 on a forged document, the cheques drawn on the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank for the same amount purporting to be endorsed by the Cheung Yuen firm's chop and Wong Kwai's signature.

Li obtained three valuable securities, cheques drawn on the National City Bank of New York to the value of $10,370.23 on a forged document, the cheques drawn on the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank for the same amount purporting to be endorsed by the Cheung Yuen firm's chop and Wong Kwai's signature.

Judge Wicks then asked witness if he had typed that document from a rough note he had made as copied from an original document, or whether the position was that accused gave him a typed copy.

Counted Spaces

Witness said that when he first went to the accused's office, the accused opened a file and showed him a document, similar to the one in Court. He asked accused if he could be allowed to make a copy of that document, and accused agreed.

He took a piece of paper of the same size as the original document and made a copy of it in pencil, witness said. He went home and typed out a copy of the original document, from the rough copy that he had made in pencil.

Witness added that he took a long time in making the copy and counted all the stipulated spaces, words, and so forth. Hearing is continuing.

CONCERT OFF

Acting on advice, the organisers of the Sino-British Club chamber music concert, which was to have been held at the Queen Elizabeth School in Kowloon at 8 o'clock tonight, have postponed the concert to a date to be announced later.

Ticket holders may obtain a refund of their money from Moutrie's, or return the tickets for use when the concert is held at a later date.

The door-opening ceremony of the New Asia College which was to have taken place today at 4 p.m. at 8 Fern Road, Kowloon, was cancelled because of the disturbances.

The ceremony will take place at a later date. The dinner which was to have taken place at 8 p.m. has also been cancelled.

Expert Typist?

Mr. d'Almada asked witness if the position was that, despite the number of occasions he said he saw Chan at the accused's presence, he did not get to know him. Li replied that he was never introduced to Chan. His

4 SENIOR POLICE OFFICERS ARRESTED

Budapest, Oct. 10. Four high Communist police officials, including the son of a former Defence Minister, have been arrested and implicated in the "fake trial" of the executed Foreign Minister, Laszlo Rakj. It was officially announced here today.

The arrested men include Colonel Vladimir Farkas, former deputy chief of Hungary's secret police and son of the disgraced former Defence Minister, General Mihaly Farkas.

Rakj was dismissed from his job, arrested and executed for "Titoist deviations." He was later exonerated and last Saturday buried with full honours.

Colonel Farkas and three other police officials have been arrested and charged with having played an "important role in the fake trial against Laszlo Rakj and his co-defendants," the announcement said. It was carried by the official Hungarian news agency, Mti.

General Mihaly Farkas, former Minister of Defence, was dismissed from his job in 1953 and earlier this year relieved of all his Party functions, expelled from the Party and stripped of his military rank. General Farkas was denounced as "Stalinist" and was one of the closest associates of the deposed Party boss, Matyas Rakosi.—United Press.

Thai Prince Here

His Serene Highness, Prince Wongsaph Jayangkul, Deputy Under-Secretary of State of Thailand, arrived by JAL from Tokyo for a four-day stay. His Highness and his wife have been to Japan on the inaugural flight of Japan Air Lines.

Meeting them at Kai Tak this morning was Mr. Charat Chaloemlarana, Thai Consul-General.
